Designed by healthcare security experts

The Healthcare Security Officer Training programme has been designed in collaboration with experts from the National Association for Healthcare Security (NAHS) and is aimed to improve standards of professionalism. The training incorporates all the learning specified the Security Industry Authority (SIA) for Security Guard Licence-linked training and is supplemented with a range of additional training that reflects the complexity of the duties and responsibilities of Healthcare Security Officers.

The 'additional' training includes:

- Dynamic Risk Assessment (the National Decision Model)
- Doctrine of Necessity, Trespass, CJIA 2008, MH 'Use of Force' Act
- Powers of detention, MHA, MCA and Common Law
- Reporting and accounting for use of force
- Lock-down procedures
- Patrolling healthcare sites
- Recognising mental ill health, learning difficulties and mental incapacity
- Understanding clinically related challenging behaviour
- Dealing with missing persons and patients
- Self-harm awareness and procedures for safeguarding vulnerable patients
- Mental health awareness (self and colleagues)

A ‘Top Up’ training course for those already SIA qualified

The Healthcare Security Officer ‘Top Up’ Training course has been specially tailored for those already SIA qualified, so as to minimise training overlap and reduce cost. The ‘Top Up’ course content consists of just the ‘additional’ healthcare specific training elements of the Healthcare Security Officer Training course (i.e. without the learning required for SIA Security Guard licence-linked training.)

The ‘Top Up’ course would also be ideal ‘refresher’ training for those who have previously undertaken the v1 Healthcare Security Officer Training course.
